The Halcyon, 1911

VOLUME XXVI

Published by

The Junior Class

of

Swarthmore College

1910

Here, within this stately gate-way lies
A college beautiful in campus and in heart.
Learning, culture, happiness form a whole
Community of which you are a part.
Yet we can not greet each one of you alone,
• Only the college can we greet ;
Now let this greeting for you all atone.

Dedication

Scientist, man, and gentleman, he is to those who know him well. As we, the class of 1911, would know him better, we wish to make this book a bond between us. This Halcyon we dedicate to

Gellert Alleman

SWARTHMORE

QUIA POSSUNT POSSE VIDENTUR

1911

Members of the Class of 1911

Anna Broomall Allen, Schaghticoke, N. Y.

Anna is strong on the defense (of Quakerism, we mean). She really believes that all Quakers are still the quiet, demure people of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" fame. She herself becomes wrathful in declaring Hugh Wynne's father too hot-tempered and unreasonable to be a true representative of the sect. Otherwise Anna is as unwarlike and law-abiding as we can wish. She possesses two very pleasant attributes with which all are familiar,—a soul-warming smile, and a soft, small voice, the pride of Professor Pearson, as well as the owner.

Francis W. Atkinson, Moorestown, N. J.

"Whit" is almost as ardent a fusser as he is a champion of class spirit, and, although a loyal member of 1911, he steadfastly insists on having a girl. Oh! Elsie. Nevertheless he's a good hum and loves to see the shows; he takes an interest in meal time, and athletics. He also has the distinction of belonging to the famous 1911 club of "near-studes."

Edith Harriett Baker, K K T, Philadelphia, Pa.

"Now, children, settle down!" "Now, William, what do you mean by whispering to Elsie? Don't you know that isn't nice?" William speaks: "Now, Miss Baker, do you remember the day when you and that feller were out walkin'—?" "William, leave the room."

So it was,
Fair, fluffly, jolly old Ede.
So it is.

Ethel H. Barnard, Westtown, Pa.

One of our indispensable day students, always on hand for a feed, frolic or fun of any kind; especially a dance, when she beats it down from her home with her big brother John. Yet none would think that she would dance, for her quiet manner and studious habits bespeak the Quaker maid.

John Arthur Barnard, Westtown, Pa.

Jack is a day student. They must raise thunder up there where he comes from, for he is always talking about lightning. He is different from the rest of the male members of the class (with the exception of Miller); he is good-looking. Once in a while Jack stays down here over night, and if you want to hear something said about college meals, just wait till Jack tells you what he had for breakfast.

Lenore Mildred Bartow, Swarthmore, Pa.

If either of "the Bartows" ever get in desperate straits, we're sure they can get permanent positions from any theater manager as Rosenerantz and Guildenstern. No "Hamlet" cast could be complete without these two to star as that famous pair; they were made for the part, and we highly recommend them to the managers, provided, of course, we get complimentary tickets for the first night.

Zelma Jane Bartow, Swarthmore, Pa.

She is the running-mate of her sister in the "red-sweatered" pair. Anyone who has ever been in a public speaking class with Zelma will remember vividly her long many twenty-five-line recitations with which she favors us each week. Her sister Lenore, too, is pretty handy with the spieling, and the two together make a first-rate team in the dramatic art.

Laura Allen Boram, Markleville, Ind.

"If you want a thing done, do it yourself." No, go to Laura Boram, for she can be depended upon. Give her a job, and she'll do it, and willingly at that. Laura claims that farming is the only occupation; so if you are intending to knock that phase of life, don't go near her, for she will tear you out.

Anna Belle Boyle, Coatesville, Pa.

There was a young lady named Belle,
Who treated the fellows right well,
Until she met Phil,
Who quite filled the bill,
Then the others she thought not so swell.

We fear Belle is not a good sport, from the way she fixed the "Stung Club" drawings; but she wanted to get her fill at the dance.

Sarah Ethel Boyt, Secane, Pa.

"I'm sorry, girls, but it's half-past seven, and you really must be quiet." This is what we hear every night at Ethel's door. Oh, poor, long-suffering proctors! Boyt and sister are sociably inclined, as indicated by the squeals and peals of laughter issuing from their room at all times of day and night. However, Poyt has hockey aspirations, and plays valiantly for 1911. (We don't know sister's aspirations yet. She's only a Freshman.)

Louis Jacquelin Bradford, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Kindly push the button and see who is here. This, my dear classmates, is "Brad," captain of the track team, and a wonderful student. He is an understudy of Rittman as far as bluff goes, and, speaking of bluff, why, "Brad" is a whole range of mountains. He has a pair of black eyes, and the girls are simply wild about him. Did you ever notice him in the dining-room? Don't look at him too long, however, or he might suddenly break in four.

Emma Getz Brooks, Chester, Pa.

Girls, did you know that Emma plays the pipe organ? Well, I only heard it incidentally, but really, if we depended on Emma for news about herself, we should never get it. But we do all know how she invariably comes out with the right answer in class—and the professors know it, too.

Margaret Broomell, K A Θ, Baltimore, Md.

It is to be hoped that the clock and chimes will soon be placed in the library tower, and that the chimes will make more noise than the present bell system. Otherwise Margaret will be in danger of starvation. She rushes into collection with eyes half open. The collection bell is the first intimation she has had that breakfast time has come and gone. Of course, when she misses meals she is very hungry, and the added expense to the college is great. We suggest that arrangements be made for an annex bell in 3d west. The college would save money.

Elsie Weeks Cadwallader, K K Γ, Yardley, Pa.

I chatter, chatter where I go,
No man my tongue can sever;
For men do try and men do sigh,
But I talk on forever.

It is whispered that Elsie's early life was unfortunate. In Yardley, you know, people bring up their children "to be seen and not heard." Of course, when Cad came to Swarthmore, there had to be a reform. She blossomed out and began to study—the art of conversation. Her only trouble is, she can't make a good-looking swirl.

Edna Carpenter, Mt. Vernon, N. Y.

"Ted" is all right from her feet up and her head down, which distance, when added, makes nearly twelve feet. She is valuable to the class in several ways. As full back on the 1911 hockey team, she is a towering light, and at class dances she can't be beaten, unless it is by her wife, the light-footed Mabelle. These two are frequently dubbed David and Jonathan, but we think David and Goliath fits better the lengthy New Yorker and the tiny Trentonian.

Gladys Coker, Hartsville, S. C.

Gladys is our "blue-ribboner." How's this for a pedigree? The daughter of an artist and an inventor, the granddaughter of an artist, and a great-granddaughter of Charles Dickens. And if English A's have anything to do with it, Gladys bids fair to be an illustrious limb of the Dickens family tree. It is she who is to blame for some of the drawings in this book, stolen from the Louvre by the 1911 Haleyon staff.

Benjamin W. Collins, Swarthmore, Pa.

"Benny" is the midget wonder of the class. On the lacrosse field he can hold his own with them all. He is a favored protégé of Doc Hoadley's. He knows almost as much concerning wireless telegraphy as Marconi himself. In spite of a certain class zeal, he is passing quietly through his four years unspotted by class politics or college life.

Lew Wallace Darnall, Indianapolis, Ind.

Lazy Lew—see him yawn. Did you ever see Wallace yawn? No? Well no one else ever did. He doesn't do such things, because he is always asleep, and never has time to yawn. Wallace is the only good student in the class, and even he does not study. We sure would like to have Wallace give us a few lessons in bluffing. He has been around here three years now, and the Profs aren't on to him yet. How does he do it?

Raymond Keenan Dentworth, $\Phi K \Psi$, Jersey Shore, Pa.

The quotation, "From nothing nothing comes," is absolutely false, for did not Dentworth come from that aggregation mercifully referred to as the Sophomore class. Den has developed to a high state of perfection that enviable ability of creating in others an excellent impression of himself. Strange to say, this takes effect upon everyone except Denworth, who will always give you an underestimated account of himself. But, who knows, this may be but one of the methods by which he produces the opposite impression.

Has anybody here seen
Eberle?
You can tell him by his hair.
He's as stubborn as can be,
As through this blank
you surely see.
Has anybody here seen
Eberle?
He was afraid he'd crack the plate.

Charles Albert Eberle, $K \Sigma$, Philadelphia, Pa.

Tod is the class athlete. The ease with which he shines on the athletic field is typical of the unconscious way he has won the hearts of all his college mates. In class he knows enough to answer wrong; but by the use of a transparent bluff and the aid of the "Indian sign," he gets his credits. Tod's earnest sermons on all ethical and moral questions belie his propensities to work, for he, too, is a "near-stude."

Susannah Maree Gregg, Pennville, Ind.

Soulful blue eyes, wavy yellow hair, and the demurest and most guileless air thee ever saw. That is Susannah—nobody would think of calling her Sue. Everybody likes her, but the curious ones think she's stubborn just because she won't tell who receives all those letters that go back to Indiana. "Thee knows there is one nice man in Indiana, and he is very fond of blue eyes."

Thomas Heston Hall, Jr., ΔΥ, Swarthmore, Pa.

Freshmen. Sophomores and dear old classmates, lend me your—shaving brush. I come not to praise Hall, but to knock him. Do you know what a record this editor-in-chief has? Listen! He is a teacher in the First-day School (or rather was), vice-president of the Ananias Club and Editor-in-Chief of this Haleyon. Now get wise. He said everything mean in this book that is herein contained. He wore out six hammers knocking things (girls included), and if he could have afforded to, he would have knocked the Dean. We, the staff, seek revenge for the way in which he has connected our names with his infamous talk and hope the class will help us pull his nose real well. Thank you.

Elizabeth A. Hallock, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Beth's been teaching in Media. I don't think the school board knows exactly what her reputation is, or they would never put the lives and morals of young Medianites in her charge. She is a sport unadulterated. She's an athlete, too. Why, it has even been whispered that her speed on the hockey field exceeds Geig's on the gridiron. As a result we have new danger signals for the athletic field. "Run for cover. Beth's on the wing."

Adele Bower Hammond, Boonton, N. J.

Honest, now, in training she only weighs forty-nine pounds. Just notice her the next time you have a chance! Small isn't quite the word; it's worse than that. Did you ever notice the way Adele looks at you when she speaks (in reference to the boys)? Well, now, we think that she has a good pair of eyes for a flirt, but of course we couldn't say that harsh word about such a dear little creature. (Written by one of the male members of the Staff.)

Margaret Vail Harned, Π Β Φ, Jersey City, N. J.

Peg is one of those people liked by everybody—not only 1911, but the whole college. She has an uncommonly good disposition, which may be due in part to the careful training of those two brothers of hers. You've heard of them, haven't you? Well, they're just perfect. But, besides these two brothers, she has a most tender heart. That time last winter when José brought his phonograph into the parlor to amuse the ladies, she talked with him all evening in Spanish. The look of supreme happiness on José's face will long be remembered.

Louisa Anne Harvey, Moorestown, N. J.

Louisa has built up a get-rich-quick scheme by establishing a second-hand book store. Suffering mortals in desperate need of $1.80 to pay Somerville dues, dump whole libraries of ancient literature on her couch and then rush off. Whereupon, for the next week, Louisa tracks them patiently about college, account book in one hand and money in the other.

Elsie Haviland, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Dear Elsie,—We want to appeal to you in our difficulty, for you have an appealing, persuading way which we are sure will have it's effect—in this case. To get to the point, Whitmer, you know who we mean, that Atkinson fellow from Moorestown, insists upon enswathing himself in a 1911 sweater which Louis Bradford earned by the sweat of his brow and the speed of his legs. Now, Elsie, can't you persuade Whitmer that it is very wrong to sail under false colors, and oblige

THE JUNIOR CLASS.

P. S.—We should also like to ask if you don't think it would be more lady like of you not to monopolize the aforesaid Whitmer. We don't believe for a minute he'd like to get away, but just give him a chance to get some experience.

J. C.

Russell Alger Henry, $\Phi \Sigma \kappa$, Tower City, Pa.

He is the Beau Brummell of 1911. His stand-in with the girls is unlimited, and at times he miloosens towards the fellows and removes his grouch. Russ's forehead would indicate a deep thinker, but he is likewise a member of the "near-studes." He is one of the few of our class to make a 'varsity.

Helen Herr, Strasburg, Pa.

Another chemist among the females, as her attire would indicate, is Helen. She loves the H₂S parlor, and can stand for the famous vocabulary of the department, so she must be a good sport. On Saturday nights she never tires of dancing in the girls' gym. No wonder she is in demand at the Junior dances.

Sarah Gilpin Heyburn, K K Γ, Spokane, Wash.

Just by the way we might say—entirely in confidence—Sarah was pretty fussy about this Halcyon picture. Was it four times she had it taken? Quite naturally Sarah felt that there was no excuse for the photographer making a poor job of such excellent material, and so she insisted on getting her money's worth. But everybody isn't as good looking, and so you can't help feeling rather lenient toward her.

Anna Heydt, Lehighou, Pa.

It's a mighty good thing for a class to have a few real genuine students. Not every class can boast of such a good one as we can in Anna Heydt. She's right on the job when it comes to work, and we're justly proud of the splendid results she obtains—a long string of A's.

William W. Hill, Jr., Markham.

William is a day student whose home is at Markham. This statement makes an excellent beginning, since it at once either arouses the curiosity or raises doubts in the reader's mind as to the possibility of being both a day student and resident of Markham. Bill has but two objects in view for attending college, namely, to play basket ball and grind in chemistry. In so doing we class him as our most enterprising day student.

Jane Frances Hoag, Sayville, N. Y.

Jane takes it into her head once in so often to "dress up" in the evening and go wandering about the college, making calls. Her rôle is that of a stout (?) colored mammy. It is quite startling to meet such a jolly apparition—and incidentally a noisy one—during quiet hours.

Elizabeth D. Hutchinson, Hemstead, N. Y.

"Sunny-tempered" is the adjective which seems to best describe Betty. She is a good many other things, too, and 1911 would not know how to get along without her as its goal tender for hockey. That girl can skate, too, and she is willing to teach her less fortunate friends.

Arthur D. Latimer, Shenandoah, Iowa.

Whence comest thou, Lord of Darkbeard, and whither goest? Mein Gott in Himmell, man, you need a shave. Do you know Latimer told Dr. Blessing that he stayed up every night till 3 o'clock studying? Even then he didn't get through. Now, Doe, that is not so. All Latimer does is to shave, and he doesn't study at all. And fuss! Why, I never saw anything like the way that fellow takes up the girls' time. It's an outrage, and the Dean can't do a thing with him.

Emma Dora Marshall, H S, Lyndell, Pa.

"Third west" will not soon forget the hospitality dispensed in the end room, at any hour of the day or night. In "Jane and Emma's room" entertainment was always provided to suit individual demand—concerts, rough-house, good talks and mighty good friends.

Florence Turner Michener, Northbrook, Pa.

Florence is one of these day students who is so rarely at college that very few people know her. She is one of those people, too, who never know a single thing at examination time, but who manages to get there as well as anyone in the class.

Glen Earl Miller, Kokomo, Ind.

Glen is the intellectual conversationalist of 1911. No matter what the subject he can always find words to express himself in any thing but the ordinary way. He stands in with Mr. Robinson, and often does away with the monotony which SOMETIMES creeps into our lectures by asking foolish and erratic questions.

Harry Lynn Brunnenmiller, K Σ, Swarthmore, Pa.

This tangled tow-head is a victim of collegetis. His walk, his talk and his desire to rough-house show this only too plainly. At any hour of the twenty-four he can be heard brawling out his whiskey tenor at the largest capacity of his young vocal organs. He made the Varsity, and some day will be president of his class. All the Profs love him, for he is also a "near-stude," but the Profs don't know him the way the co-eds do. He is counting on his aristocratic name to get a wife.

Henry Tyson Moore, Sandy Springs, Md.

Moore dropped in from some back date to enumerate how it used to be done, thus the class needed him, for 1911 is always doing things a different way. But Moore will make it right. His ability in all lines almost comes up to his conception of his powers. He is certainly a hard worker and a hard player. At dances Sandy is much in demand, for the queens claim that he surely can shuffle his feet.

Helen Roderfield Parker, K K Γ, Swarthmore, Pa.

The most striking thing about Helen is her turban swirl. There are very few girls who look as well as she does with this new style hairdress. Helen, too, is a first-class hostess. Having the cake and the penny both, she lives in college and at the same time has her home in the village. Many a pleasant college party has had a royal good time under her roof.

Edna W. Passmore, Oxford, Pa.

She is blest with numerous relations, particularly aunts and cousins, each with an interesting story attached. But outside of her conversational powers, she is a very quiet mortal. Even her giggle never rises beyond a certain pitch.

E. Russell Perkins, ΔΥ, Moorestown, N. J.

For Russ to take life seriously would be impossible, unless it was taking honors which he is pretty good at. With the girls he is always in demand and always laughing; with the fellows he is blasé, and always SINGING. Russ's "piano legs" figure prominently in all branches of athletics. When Russ bought the devil hats he said: "We want them for $1.50, but can give $2.00." Of course the hats cost $2.00, after that. It's a cinch Russ has lost his Quaker.

Albert Merritt Pitcher, ΦΚΨ, New York, N. Y.

"Ditty" is what the girls call him, and "Pitch" is the name he goes by amongst the fellows. He is a real handsome fellow (a rare thing in the class), but the "cutest thing" about Pitch is his little white patch of hair, which the girls are all crazy about. He is athletically inclined, and one of our strong men.

Dorothy M. Plack, Philadelphia, Pa.

Dorothy is a crack when it comes to getting on the right side of the Profs. We've been told by experts that her brain is full of bumps gleaned from stacks of English books. She may at first appear quiet, but get her talking about the beauties of West Philadelphia or her new nephew, and she can beat a Victor every time.

Angeline J. Powers, $\Pi \Sigma$, Philadelphia, Pa.

When Crumb is having her picture taken she looks quite sedate and dignified. But if you had ever been on a house-party with her in the summer, when she doesn't feel such a pressure of work—well, you'd know all about it then. There's one thing about Crumb,—her laugh. It is most irrepressible and contagious. She asked us not to mention this, but until you know her laugh, you don't know Crumby.

Elizabeth Evans Price, $\Pi \Sigma$, Plymouth Meeting, Pa.

Yes, we all know Beth's fatal weakness. This picture just shows how happy she can look, at times. Beth, I'm afraid you d'dn't tell all the people about the College Settlement Convention in Boston last fall, which you attended as our President. Instead of going on a through train to Boston, she somehow got side-tracked at Brown Univ—I mean at Providence, and she finally arrived in Boston almost too late for the business meeting of the convention. We were all so sorry, especially since we had contributed for the trip. We do hope she'll do better next year. If there is one thing Beth likes better than all else, it's the drop. Don't we all remember the Junior Dance? Well, I guess.

Elizabeth Richards, $\Pi \Sigma$, Pompton Plains, N. J.

When Bess gets an idea or opinion it's almost impossible to shake her convictions, or alter her severe standpoint. Nevertheless you always think of her for student exec-committees and various kinds of responsible committees, besides numerous athletic positions. She looks the part; her stooped shoulders and serious face might carry the GREAT RESPONSIBILITY of the girls' exec.

Emmor Roberts, ΔΥ, Moorestown, N. J.

This is our business manager's able assistant, who does all the dirty work connected with the publication and for which the business manager receives full credit. All this is encouraging in the extreme, but then Emmor has more time on his hands this year. To be perfectly frank—she graduated. It's simply another plain case of "He loved her, but she moved." Nevertheless he has cheered up wonderfully, and it is a rare time indeed when Emmor has not a ready smile for everybody.

Arthur S. Robinson, ΦΣΚ, Wilmington, Del.

Did you ever hear Art swear? Say, when he does do such a thing, that voice of his goes up like my sister Tetratzin's. He doesn't swear often—can't afford to, you know, for business is business, and Art is a business man, Business Manager of this book, and a good one, too (that is Art), or rather he would be a good one if his face was not so fat. Speaking of fat, where did he get the stuff to eat? Business, I suppose. Why, that boy fairly eats business except when he is bluffing Dr. Blessing.

Ruth C. Sharp, Riverton, N. J.

Ruth stars as a composition student and as a banjo player, and as lots of other things, but most particularly is she famous as an economics arguer. She delights Mr. Nearing with her deep and logical arguments, and makes the other members of the class, who want to star with the renowned Nearing, quite green with jealousy.

Finley Hall Shiland, Cambridge, N. Y.

"Good gracious, I will have to study this Physics," says Shiland, as he proceeds to give a perfect discourse on the lesson. To hear him talk one would judge that Finley never opened a book. Now, Shiland, you ought to cut that work out, for you are showing up all the Junior engineers. As a reward, I suppose some day you will be a big consulting engineer, but what's the use?

Herschel Gaston Smith, Austin, Texas.

Here is the class grind. "Chocolate" is a health and fresh-air fiend. With the transom at an angle of 59° and the window raised 13 centimeters from the bottom, he seeks his beauty sleep each night. Smitty is somewhat of a dude, but he can't sing for a darn. He had a girl once, but since that sad date when he sang a serenade under her Parrish window it has been, "After you, my dear Gaston."

Therese D. Spackman, K A ©, Riverton, N. J.

Ruth Sharp, in a hurry—"Oh, girls, have you seen anything of T? I was afraid she would do something desperate. Yesterday she lost her last text-book, and this morning her last pin disappeared. Our room is simply destitute, for she has lost everything but the rug and one chair, and now, oh dear, she is gone herself. Supe had to put in an extension bulletin board for 'lost' signs, and I can't study because people are forever dropping in to return gloves, handkerchiefs, books, pins, collars, belts, scarfs, etc. I guess it's a relief that even she is lost for a while."

Grace R. Tucker, West Chester, Pa.

The girl with the quantity of hair and the deep, quiet voice. We don't see as much of her as we like, for she is a day student; but we have been glad to include her in some of our good times, such as the girls' feed and the Junior dance.

Russell Tylor, Easton, Md.

Having received sufficient credit with "Alec," Tylor without warning joined 1911, for which act alone he is entitled to much additional credit. He considers life a most serious proposition, except when elaborating upon his favorite topic, himself. Occasionally, when not preoccupied as mentioned above, he can ask truly as absurd a question as any member of 1913.

Ruth Verlenden, Darby, Pa.

In her room gather all, from Freshman to Senior, to partake of her wit and advice. As class secretary she was there with bells on, especially at sending out invitations to the reception. Never mind, Ruth, it wasn't your fault. You are strong as ever with the class. Just keep on living up to your convictions and talking woman's rights, and you will still fill the bill.

Elizabeth N. Washburn, Farm School, Pa.

Do you remember that time when you tried to change the regulation hockey uniform, Elizabeth? You're a pretty determined somebody, but, judging from the hard knocks you got that day, I'm afraid Miss Bates got the better of you. You'd better stick to the Chemistry Department and let Miss Bates run the athletics.

J. A. Watson, $\Phi \Sigma \kappa$, Moore, Pa.

The reader's attention is directed toward the initials. The veracity of this slanderous inference depends entirely upon the point of view. In the case of the Faculty a verdict of guilty might possibly be rendered, for in classes James can hold forth instantaneously and at great length upon any clue, no matter how slight or how uncertain it may be. However, as his classmates, we entertain serious doubts as to the justice of the accusation.

Ellwood Zavitz Way, St. Thomas, Ontario.

Easy by nature,
E. Z. by name,
As a member of Delphic
He gained all his fame.

Elizabeth White, K K F, Atlantic City, N. J.

Elizabeth is a most proper and dignified person. With all due respect to the august Delta Alpha Sigmas, knowing their pride-reducing propensities, we don't see how they ever had the nerve to ask her to join. One of her good qualities is her good soprano voice. She has brought honor to 1911 by singing on the quartette ever since Freshman year.

Mabelle G. Whitehead, Trenton, N. J.

Who's the maiden fair,
With the independent air?

Why, she's our shining example of the proverb, "Good goods in small packages," for she is a large bunch of dignity in a small package, only about five feet long. If anyone thinks his rights have been infringed, let him go to Mabelle, for she is equipped with a tool of such contemptuous scorn any opposition fades from view immediately. Very forceful in expressing her view and a good arguer—she should study law.

Joseph Henry Willits, Ward, Pa.

This well-known member of the Delphic Lit. is certainly far advanced when it comes to debate. Great minds are always set in slender bodies. Never mind, Joe, you can pole-vault just the same. With his red bag, Joe looks the part of a lawyer, and he has already planned his career as a congressman.

Rata Emma Willitt, Mayville, N. Y.

Beautiful, billowy, trailing tresses,
A dancer divine, with the flossiest dresses!

If you want a good yarn, a good joke or a good laugh, Rate's room is the warehouse. Thanks to "antitoxin for fatigue," she's up and doing all hours of the night to chase away blues. She's fond of Shakespeare, too, and "just simply adores" Hamlet's speech, "Angels and ministers of Mayville defend me." When it comes to good nature, why she'd beat Prexy himself.

Katharine Reinoehl Whitmeyer, K K Γ, Lebanon, Pa.

Here's to our Junior named Kate.
Who gives all the boys the heart-ache;
She plays with them all,
From the large to the small.
And then leaves each one to his fate.

Elizabeth Clark Yocum, II Σ, Norristown, Pa.

Yen's a daisy, she's a dandy, she's a dear,
She's a double-jointed juggler in the gym;
She's the only thing that doesn't care nor fear,
For the roughest kind of fierce fast hocky vim.

Yen's the name everybody calls her, and nobody knows why. Freely translated from Chinese, it means "rough and ready." She's the kind who cures blues, etc. For a sample of true athletic felicity see Yen and Miss Bates going out the east gate at 6.30 some December morning.

The PHOENIX is making an honest effort to give us a college paper, wherein it has been successful; you accept as a commonplace, therefore, wherein it is lacking must be strange, but wonder not for maybe you are just a bit to blame.

The Joseph Leidy Scientific Society

THE Scientific Society was organized in March, 1895, and later received the name of The Joseph Leidy Scientific Society of Swarthmore College. Its object is to keep abreast with the discoveries in the scientific world. There are five sciences included in the work of the association: Astronomy, Biology and Physiography, Chemistry, Engineering, and Physics. The programs of the meetings consist of a report from the instructors in each of the above departments concerning the recent discoveries in their respective sciences. Papers are then read by different members on topics of scientific interest, followed by an open discussion by the Society. The interesting character of these programs is shown by the full attendance at the meetings, from both the College and the borough.

The residents of the borough of Swarthmore are eligible to membership, as well as the students and officers of the College. The meetings are held on the second Third-day evening of alternate months during the College year.

FOOTBALL

None of you can have forgotten that memorable day a year ago last spring when that fatal announcement was made—no more football. It was only an experiment—an unsuccessful one. Spirit was dead, every kind of college spirit. Everything went from bad to worse. There was no cheering of athletic heroes, no football dinner, and Swarthmore dropped out of the football world forever, it seemed.

Football was resumed on a new basis. Spirit was new, and everything was better.

Only one member of the old team returned, and he was made captain. With the exception of two or three others none of the material which presented itself had ever had any experience in college football.

The team was light, but speed made up for this, and trick passes took the place of the old-time line plunges.

Coach Brooke started at the bottom, and built up a machine that never worked twice the same way, but always toward the same goal. It seemed a hopeless task when he started out in the early fall. The team had to be changed several times, and each time for the better. It was a fruitless task, and Coach Brooke, together with Dr. Fauver, deserves a great deal of credit.

On October 9th we played our first game, and lost. We lost to Lafayette, and then to Fordham, but the spirit and the team never stopped growing. Then we won from Delaware, and then lost again to Villa Nova and Ursinus, and ended up with a victory over Bucknell—you already know the history of the past season.

In points it was not a victorious season, but in every other line it was the most successful season we have had for several years.

We fought a losing game and—did not lose.

BASE BALL

Baseball was adopted by the Athletic Association on October 5, 1908. The resumption of the game by Swarthmore after a lapse of more than ten years was the result of constantly increasing sentiment in favor of the game. The voice of this sentiment demanded that Swarthmore should adopt a sport that would enable her to compete with colleges of her class and maintain in the spring the standard that her football team had made in the fall.

To start the game was not easy, as financial difficulties had to be overcome. The adoption, however, merely meant the use of the college name, and to meet the necessary expenses, Max B. Miller inaugurated the First Annual Circus. It was wholly through his untiring efforts, with that of a few generous Alumni, that the season was so successful financially. Furthermore, seasoned material had to be developed from candidates whose knowledge of the game was none too large. It was left to "Coach" Weymouth to develop the players. The season's record amply tells his success. Games were won from N. Y. U., Delaware College and Temple University. Swarthmore lost to Rutgers College, Ursinus and Lehigh University. On Alumni Day a twelve-inning tie was played with F. & M.

The outlook for 1910 is unusually promising, all but three of the old men are now in college. "Coach" Weymouth will be at the helm, and with the material from the entering class should make a great team.

Baseball has come to stay. The students and Alumni say so. Swarthmore's athletic reputation demands it. Best of all, its coming has seemed to put new life and stimulus in all the other college sports.

LACROSSE

For the first time in four years the lacrosse team was awarded their S's last spring. This was gratifying to the players, and most certainly well deserved by the men who had faithfully played the game for three or four years. But although that signified that the season was in a measure successful, the team had not gained the ability or hardihood to stand up against the best collegiate team in the country and run, with a good break of luck, a fair chance of winning. Now that is the kind of a team we want this year, a team full of spirit and full of fight. Last year the team was greatly handicapped by the lack of one special coach; this year the case will be different. We have some new material now, so if none of the lacrosse contingency quit, there is no reason why the season should not be a success. Lacrosse has got to make good.

Basket Ball

Once again we have had a very successful basketball season. We did not win the State championship, but we missed it by only one game—Bucknell beat us by a margin of only two points. But what of it? We beat Pennsylvania by a good score—twice in succession now, and broke even with State. In fact we won nearly all of the interstate games.

The prospects for a good team seemed at first to be unusually bright, as all of last year's varsity had returned and were eligible to play. Two of these men, however, were forced to retire from the game, and Coach Weymouth had to develop some new material to fill these vacancies, which was no easy task.

The two defeats at New York gave the team a poor start, but they soon struck their gait, and the next three games resulted in victories, the victory over the army being especially creditable. Enthusiasm ran high throughout the entire season, and the student body as a whole were exceptionally well pleased with the results of the schedule.

Track

The 1909 track season was not as successful as some of the past seasons. No team was sent to the Penn Relays, and no meets were won. Lafayette defeated us by a large margin, and Penn State by a smaller one. An analysis of the dual meets shows that Swarthmore lost because of a lack of quantity of material rather than because of a lack of quality. The meet with Penn State furnishes a good example. Six men competed, and took six firsts, two ties for first and one second. Swarthmore was defeated because there were no men to take seconds.

In the I. A. A. A. meet Krueger took second in the shot put, but the other men failed to place. In the P. I. A. A. meet Phipps tied for first in the pole vault, and equaled the record. Roy and Garrison took thirds in the mile and the quarter respectively.

Three college records were broken. Phipps raised the pole vault from 10 feet 6½ inches to 11 feet; Eberle set the 220-yard low hurdle record at 25 2-5 seconds, and the 120-yard high hurdle record at 15 3-5 seconds.

STARTING A CUSTOM.

Every institution has certain customs which cause a sort of halo of sentiment to hover around the "Dome." These little things make the old grads return and the undergraduates rejoice. Swarthmore has these customs, and now we have another—one a little different from the rest, and yet just as beautiful. It is something in which everybody takes an interest.

This fall was the first trial, and there is no need of a second—trial, that is. It was a success from start to finish. The Faculty and students marched in procession down to the lower campus. Each class sang its songs and gave its cheers, and then came the exercises. It could not have been a more beautiful day, and things could not have gone off better.

Prologue

*Making books is not what we,
As college students profess to be
In any literary way expert in.
That no one's feelings may be hurt in
Reading our few pages through,
Remember that we laugh with you ;
So if you feel inclined to knock,
Or in our classic take no stock,
Remember we "don't give a cuss" ;
Tables turn and laugh with us.*

LITERARY * MISCELLANY

Editorial

In presenting this Halcyon to the students, friends, faculty and alumni of the college we hope that it may be received in the spirit intended. We beg to impress upon you the idea that whatever appears herein misplaced must so appear from the faults of expression and not of spirit or intention. We have not striven for a classic or literary style. We only hope you will find the story of a typical Swarthmore year in a pleasing form, then we shall be pleased. Excuse no faults in the compiling of the so-called "cut and dried" material—such mechanical work should be absolutely correct. But if other phases of our Halcyon should displease you, we can only refer you to our co-worker, Toady Miller, who has pugilistic tendencies when aroused.

EDITORS.

The Same Old Strain

Swarthmore. Swarthmore,
Dearest to me;
Pride fills my heart
When I think of thee.

Ivy-clad, ivy-clad,
Hall of my folly;
Lend me thy strength
When I feel melancholy.

Finest of tutors
Teach me to be,
Though I flunk all my studies,
A credit to thee.

Show me, oh, show me,
Oft in my dream,
Thy green-tinted campus
And wood-guarded stream.

First to my knowledge
My footsteps to stay;
The thoughts of that stopping
Shall not pass away.

Sentiment, sentiment!
Keep at my door
A guard to my love
Of my college Swarthmore.

Skating on the Crum

When it's growing on toward evening
And the sun sinks to its rest,
When the last weak beams are leaving
Golden traces in the west;
Then when walking by Strath Haven
You are sure to hear the hum
Of the voices of the people
Out skating on the Crum.

You can hear the ice a-cracking,
See the skaters onward glide,
See the brand new skates a-shining,
Boys a-racing side by side;
Hear the merry shouts and laughter
That to passersby do come,
From the band of happy people
Out skating on the Crum.

It may be we college students,
Scattered far from Swarthmore halls,
Will watch the golden sun a-setting,
See the last ray as it falls.
Then I know we'd give a good bit,
Yes, in truth, a goodly sum,
To hear again the voices
Of the skaters on the Crum.

To the Freshmen

Professor Rawson tells us
That in the days gone by,
Folks thought "that day would never come"
When we would soar up high—

But the time has come, the day is here
When aeroplanes fly through the air;
And a sail up high is the grandest thing
When the day is bright and fair.

So once when the weather was crisp and cold,
And I was dressed up warm;
I took a sail o'er the college
To see how things went on.

The clock in Chester had just struck five
When we came to Whittier field.
The boys were coming out to play,
Our machine aback we reeled.

It was a freshman practice,
There was Geig, their hero tall;
And Delaplaine, of prep school fame,—
I watched him kick the ball.

We then flew to the hockey field,
Betty Keller had struck the ball;
Mary Blackburn had wounded three women;
Emma Kinsey had made a goal.

And as we sailed o'er the campus,
We saw some poor man in a pickle:
A whole bunch of Sophomores hazing,
And yes—it was Steve Van Syckel.

And there went little freshman Webb
In his great big auto-car.
He's very seldom at college or classes,
He's always speeding afar.

And by and by as night wore on,
And the dinner bell had rung,
We drew our machine toward the dining-room,
And down toward the window we swung.

Yes, there by the door sat Tom Baker,
The Apollo of the class.
Those good looks and that Southern drawl
Will captivate many a lass.

But why this awful uproar
And Miss Meeteer's distress?
Why it's Vernon with the soup turcen;
He must like soup, I guess.

But hurrah for little Miss Baker.
He might have been drinking it still,
Had she not snatched the bowl away,
I guess he had had his fill.

Then Shock, that wise one of the West,
Announced in a loud, clear bawl,
That after dinner at 7 o'clock
There'd be a meeting in Collection Hall.

And there is Nan Oppenlander,
With her Victor right next to her;
And Virginia and Prentice and sister,—
What a cute family party they were.

At last the meal was over;
I was glad I was not there
To eat of the hash and the twice-cooked foods,
And all such sumptuous fare.

I heard a queer medley of voices,
So we turned the machine around,
And we saw that 'twas from the gymnasium
Gushed forth this awful sound.

Pace was singing four parts at once;
Iva the ivories did pound;
Martha and Dolly were singing high C;
Do you wonder when such sights astound?

Next our machine to the library we turned
To see who the students were;
There was Gillam, and Rex, and Pancoast,
The alcoves were all astir.

There were Farmer and Hattie just leaving;
I told Kenneth that cases there were bad.
But he vowed they were good—
Hattie Good cause! Well, I s'pose that he had

And safe in another alcove,
Quite away from the rest,
We saw that old case—Walter and Emma,
You know that began at G. S.

We were next attracted to Wharton
By the greatest noise and din ;
I guess Myers calls it singing,
But to call it that were a sin.

There was Cook playing at poker ;
And "Bad" Eliot raising a fuss ;
And Weller telling fish-stories ;
There's not one word you can trust.

And there's Charlie Major still raving.
Won't you let up one little whit ?
But Joe's charms have smitten him deeply,
She's charming we all will admit.

And next to Parrish we wend our way.
A low whistle I heard—no doubt
From 2nd west window the sound came,
We'll see what it's all about.

What, was't a box of fudge I saw
That fell into Pollock's hands ?
We hope that he won't break training,
'Tis getting late, too, my lands !

Again the clock in Chester sounded
Out through the evening chill ;
And I turned from these gay college scenes,
Altho' 'twas against my will.

I could tell much more of the scenes I saw,
Of Force of Crum Creek fame ;
Of Reba and Martha Williams,
Whose eyes set hearts aflame ;

Of Baker dancing the drop step ;
Of Tarble whose skating is fine ;
Of Williams talking as usual ;
Of Van Trump, who loafs all the time.

But 'tis useless to mention in endless chain
The fame of this wonderful class.
We're proud to be your guardians,
And we like you all—en masse.

A cheer now we'll give for Swarthmore,
And we'll cry up to high heaven
The praises of 1913
And the class of 1911.

- PARADISE LOST -

Paradise Lost

(With apologies to S. T. Coleridge.)

It is our old St. Petress,
And she stoppeth only me.
“By thy long thin hand and glittering key,
Now wherefore stopp’st thou me?”

The dining-room doors are fastened tight,
And I must get within,
The folks are there, the scrapple’s fried,
May’st hear the merry din.

She holds me with her glittering eye,
The sleepy me stands still,
And waiteth like a three years’ child:
St. Petress hath her will.

She grabs me with her skinny hand,
“It’s past the time,” quoth she,
“Hold off! unhand me, gray-haired loon,”
Eftsoons her hand dropt she.

She pokes me with her finger lank,
And thus spake on that hungry me,
“Your clock is fast, Wharton’s bells don’t ring,
I must have my meal, you see.”

Higher and higher swelled the din,
Till above the Freshies’ giggle—
The college stude here beat his breast,
For he heard the scrapple sizzle.

Good St. Petress turns to flint,
She will not give me food,
She turns her back on hungry me,
A trembling Swarthmore stude.

Why the Maidens Leave Their Happy Homes

“I’ll almost have to get acquainted with you all over again, after having been away a week,” said Mrs. Flagg, as she and Mrs. Tyler settled themselves in cozy neighborliness. “Yes, I got back yesterday afternoon. Shouldn’t wonder if Helen’s feeling a little homesick by this time, though I left her as happy as a lark. Yes, indeed, I’m mighty glad I went. Sometimes it did seem foolish to send Helen way on East, but I haven’t had a minute’s regret since I saw the place. Surroundings mean such a lot, you know, Mrs. Tyler, and the whole feeling of the place was just like a big home. All the teachers I talked to were so interested in Helen, too! You know it isn’t every girl can enter college at the age of sixteen. Of course I couldn’t say that to everybody, but you understand.

“No, I didn’t get to know the President very well. I saw a good deal of the Dean, though, which is practically the same thing. She is such a lovely woman! I went to a meeting with Helen—a meeting for the Freshmen—and she spoke beautifully about the home atmosphere of the college. She gives teas, I believe, where the boys and girls meet informally. It’s nice that they can have good times together like that, isn’t it? Oh, and another custom they have, is Sunday night singing. My dear, that first Sunday night was so impressive! I’ll never forget one hymn they sang, something about the day being over. Everybody in that big room sang, and the way the boys’ deep voices came out was so beautiful I wanted to cry! A good many of the hymns I had never heard before.

“I was a little disappointed in her lessons. You know, Mrs. Tyler, she has always been the first in her class in composition, and of course I couldn’t let her drop that. I helped Helen get her lesson-card signed up. The composition teacher was very sweet looking, but almost too young and girl-like—a Miss Lake, I think she said her name was. I’m always doubtful of these awfully young teachers, though. I daresay, this Miss Lake must be fairly good or the college would never have engaged her. Registration day was terribly hot, too, and I had to wait two solid hours just for English. I thought I should drop! I don’t see why she couldn’t have taken it next year just as well.

“Yes, you are right. I was a little worried about that side of the life, for Helen isn’t strong and needs nourishing food. But I was quite reassured, for the college has its own farm and garden. That certainly does make a big difference, as you say, Mrs. Tyler. There were plenty of milk and eggs, for instance. I did hear it said that they made scrambled eggs out of some kind of powder, but I don't believe it. The scrambled egg looked just as real as if I had made it myself. The food isn't just tiresome necessities all the time, either. Several times last week we had the most delicious preserved apricots and peaches. Of course the first week they hadn't gotten into the best regulated order of affairs.

"The dining room is a dreadful big place. It made Helen nervous at first, the noise and having so many people at the table. Oh, no, Mrs. Tyler, it isn't a boarding school! The boys and girls influence each other for good manners. The head of Helen's table is the sweetest Senior! I wish you could meet her, Mrs. Tyler. She was so polite to me, and just did everything she could to get Helen acquainted and make her feel at home. She couldn't help liking Helen though, for she is pretty and attractive! But I've always been careful not to let her know it, for if there's one thing I hate it's a vain child! What was I talking about? Oh, the Senior. Do you know, I got an idea from her for Helen's next birthday. Several times she wore the oddest breastpin—a little key set with pearls. It was a dear, and so different from the common run of jewelry. There, I meant to ask her where she bought it, but I forgot it! I'll have to write Helen to ask her. Well, I have run on at a great rate, haven't I? But I knew you'd be interested. Oh, yes, Helen got all settled before I came away. The rooms are pretty small, but some of the older girls have them fixed up real comfortable and attractive. I promised to send Helen some posters. They cover the wall space well, and are so cheerful and bright. You have? One of those tea advertisements. Yes, that will be the very thing. Helen will be delighted, I know. Well, then, good-bye, Mrs. Tyler."

Darkness, Ode to

Silently he closed the door,
Softly he turned the key,
Noiselessly he looked around,
But nothing could he see,
—It was dark.—

Much Ado About Nothing (to Eat)

or, Root Hog, or Die

Play in one act.

Time—Present and Future.

Place—Dans la room de Mlle. Bronk.

Persons—Mr. and Miss-informed table heads.

PRELUDE.

Eggs made out of paper,
Butter that could work,
Live ones in the shreaded wheat,
And garlic in the milk.

The veal grew on a twelve-year-old;
The cabbage in the swamp,
The corned-beef never saw a cow,
But ah! the H₂O was damp.

So things were rather lively,
Only cooked ones dead,
"Butter and all ought to be hanged,"
But that's not all they said.

First Act before (they were)—Scene last.

Enter the enraged table heads singing to the tune the old cow died on (the one we had for lunch).

"She had brass rings on her fingers;
She put welts on my nose."

They seat themselves.

Griffin (the ever hungry leader, rapping lightly on the table): "Will the meeting come to order?"

Mlle. Corkran (with the lovely hair): "Can't hear you if there is any meat to be had."

Griffin (with one eye on one of the larger members of the assembly and the other on Mlle. Campbell): "The Dean was unable to get here to-day."

Cork (butts in): "G'ad I was delivered from eating any of that sole leather to-day—no wonder she could not get here—wonder if there is another at home like her."

Griffin: "As I was saying, the Dean could not get here to-day, and the first thing to do is to get a chairman."

Miss Goodwyn (cooly): "I nominate thee, Frank."

Frank (He, He): "Well, I guess that is settled; see who the boss is, don't you?"

Prof. Sproul: "Don't we get to vote on that?"
(Great display of color much to the amusement of the assembled multitude.)

Griffin: "We are here assembled in order to do good for our fellow-students. (Much applause.) Now, to-day, we discovered at our table an insect in the cereal."

Chorus of voices: "Is that all?"

Griffin continues waxing eloquent: "This is an outrage. Are we to stand for it? Shall we allow ourselves to be trampled upon by that mob of hash slingers in the rear end of this historic Parrish Hall. NO WE SHALL NOT."

Mary Hollowell (meekly): "That's settled then."

Griffin (clearing his throat and brushing aside the salt tears): "Now I should like to hear what others have found?"

Everyone is held spell-bound by the awful picture that has been placed before them.

Wickham (shaking off the spell, rises and smashes the serene silence): "Mr. Chairman, I move you—"

Ever-ready Cork: "You move him' and he'll break."

Wickham (astonished by the impertinence, but continues): "I move you that a committee be appointed to give Miss Baker a good stiff kick."

Much gurgling, and Wickham changes the color of his face very quickly.

Krider (of the preceding years to come fame): "Mr. Chairman, put me on that committee;" and he has a good laugh all to himself—selfish brute.

Miss Goodwyn: "I second the motion."

Cork: "She wants him moved closer, I know."

Griffin: "It has been moved and seconded that a committee be appointed to kick all concerned in this outrage."

Fred Seaman (getting up his nerve): "Question."

Griffin: "All in favor say aye."

There is a small thunder of ayes.

The meeting is then adjourned after Krider, Corkran and Goodwyn are appointed as the best kickers.

The Circus Maximus

In the Gym, there was a circus,
And its fame spread far and wide,
Even crossed the blue Atlantic,
Landed on the other side.

When it reached the staid old Romans,
They said, "That appeals to us,"
And they carried out the fancy
By a "Circus Maximus."

And old Dante, an Italian,
Slapped his knee and cried out, "Well,"
And he wrote his "Commedia"
'Bout his visit down to Hell.

And Jim Jeffries got some pointers
As to how he ought to fight,
Now without as much as trying,
He can beat both black and white.

Now all the college professors
Give a history course, '13,
Telling all about the circus,
And the wonders that were seen.

To Father Time

Who is it lights the halls each night,
And always sees that things are right?
Father Time.

Who each morn knocks upon our door,
And's greeted with a lusty snore?
Father Time.

Who was it one night brought some cake
To the North Wing girls that were awake?
Father Time.

Who was it called "Supe" to his aid
That great night of the kitchen raid?
Father Time.

Who lets each late returner in,
Nor breathes a word of trick or sin?
Father Time.

Long may he live, and just as long
We'll tell his praise in tale or song!
Father Time.

District Court of Old South Wharton

INHABITANTS OF OLD SOUTH vs. HORACE TILLMAN.

THE TRIAL.

Judge: Ross Marriott.

Sheriff: Krider. Tipstaff: Atkinson.

Defendant: Horace Tillman.

JURY:

Gaskill, Lamb, Moore, Johnson, Crews, Gilchrist.

Prosecuting Attorney: V. C. Lane.

Attorney for Defense: "Tony" Weller.

Witness for Defense: Hess.

Witnesses for Prosecution: Eberle, Hall, Beecher,
Corson, Millar.

Clerk of Court: Wickham.

Court Stenographer: Tanberg.

Door-keeper: Messner.

Reporters: Times, Gearing; North American, Sharp-less; Press, Cadwallader; Inquirer, Mitchell; The New York Journal, Prentiss Myrick.

Select gathering of on-lookers.

Behind the glossy walnut bar of the District Court of Old South Wharton, Judge Marriott hushed to silence the titters of the expectant room, the tipstaff called the session to order according to the time-honored custom, and the judge called for the first case.

Wickham, clerk of court, announced from behind his spectacles, "The Inhabitants of Old South vs. Horace Tillman, Porter."

Then, amid a dead silence, Mr. Victor Lane, attorney for the prosecution, arose and demanded that the full charge be read and the case be placed immediately under the surveillance of the court.

Accordingly, under the direction of his honor, the Judge, the Clerk of the Court, placing his body at right angles to his feet, proceeded: "Horace Tillman, porter of the old division of South Wharton, is hereby charged with drunkenness and disorderly conduct on Thursday, being the twentieth day of the month of January, Anno Domini, one thousand nine hundred and ten. That being in such condition is liable to trial at hands of the occupants of that division of Wharton wherein his duty lay." This said, the clerk resumed his seat.

Then up spake his honor the Judge: "Mr. Horace Tillman, you have heard this awful charge that has been made against you: do you plead guilty or not guilty?"

The stalwart Ethiopian was immediately all ears, but before answering a charge of such intrinsic importance, turned in bewilderment to his trusty attorney for assistance. The latter forthwith passed a few mighty words, in a soft and easy fashion, through the blue aroma of cigarette smoke.

The result was phenomenal, the culprit arose, and despite the beady stares of the press reporters, announced in a voice entirely free of emotion: "Not guilty."

A murmur of surprise and amazement exuded from the motley array of onlookers, but order was instantly restored by the ominous thump of the Judge's gavel.

Under the direction of the Judge, the prosecuting attorney (sometime employee of the Standard Boil and Growler Company) arose, and the prosecution proceeded on its course before a steady breeze with every stitch of canvas set: "Your Honor, the Judge, gentlemen of the jury, remaining contents of the court room. You have all heard the charge made against the plaintiff by this court. Before continuing my discourse further, I shall call upon my witnesses to testify concerning this case. First witness, Mr. Blatz, of Wilmington, Delaware."

After taking the oath of the commonwealth, Mr. Blatz began: "About two o'clock on the afternoon of Thursday, January 20th, 1910, I boarded a trolley, bound for Chester, in company with several fellow-students. Immediately following our entrance, the conductor of said trolley hustled down the aisle of the car, clapped a dark complexioned gentleman on the back, announcing at the same time in a not over-endearing manner, 'This is Swarthmore.' Following the natural impulse of my chemical curiosity, I directed my attention more closely to the object of the conductor's affection. Imagine my utter astonishment at beholding no less a personage than the plaintiff, Horace Tillman. It was quite evident that the gentleman was the worse for wear, as he responded only very feebly to the summons of our friend, the conductor. His apparent indisposition was decidedly not in keeping with the situation at hand, and accordingly after a short struggle, Mr. Tillman landed in a horizontal position in the snow. The car was instantly set in motion, and as the car passed around a curve I observed that the position of Mr. Tillman was unchanged."

Having performed his duty to the best of his ability, Mr. Blatz once again resumed his seat, leaving the floor to Mr. Hall, the second witness of the prosecution.

After "swearing in," Mr. Hall proceeded: "I was in company with Mr. Blatz at the time, and wish to verify the testimony given by him. I wish, however, to add a few words to the testimony already given. It was a self-evident fact that the plaintiff was past the third sheet in the wind. He was evidently just returning from the borough of Darby, where he had imbibed too freely in the fusel oil ($\text{Tr}_{16}\text{O}_{32}\text{Si}_4\text{SCN}_7\text{O}_{11}\text{Br}_{327}\text{Cl}_{99}\text{S}_{23}\text{H}_{44}$ —Doctor Alleman says this is the probable composition of this entrancing liquid—with a possible trace of radium) for sale in that place at an extremely low cost to the consumer. Anyone doubting the power of this amber-colored liquid may satisfy his curiosity by mixing himself a little toddie according to the above prescription."

After passing through the routine process of the preceding witness, Mr. Eberle took the stand: "About three o'clock on the afternoon of the afore-named day, I was wending my weary way o'er that portion of the campus immediately in front of Parrish Hall, when I came upon the plaintiff. The course was decidedly uncertain, and his motion most erratic. He was like unto a large frigate laboring heavily in a big sea. I essayed to speak to him several times, but hesitated lest I awaken him; finally, however, I nerved myself for the act and shouted: 'Horace, you're drunk!' For a fraction of a second he straightened himself to vertical position, and said to me in a husky voice: 'When did this damn earthquake start?' He spoke no more, but pushed on as best he might, and finally disappeared with a plunge within the stately portals of Booker T. Washington Hall." Here endeth the testimony of Mr. Eberle.

Mr. Millar next arose and verified the statistics given by Mr. Eberle, having been in company with the latter during the second and third acts of the show. He added, however, that, scientifically speaking, Mr. Tillman was a wonder, in his nearness to disproving the laws of gravity, a feat worthy of some note.

Mr. Corson, the last witness for the prosecution, took the stand, and testified that he had seen the plaintiff on his pilgrimage through the town, and his conduct was far from that becoming a gentleman of his social standing. Thus the testimony of the prosecution came to an end. It is well to note here that one of these so-called "witnesses" is a member of excellent standing in the Ananias Club.

At the summons of the Judge, Mr. Victor C. Lane, prosecuting attorney, took the stand, and began a most thrilling, grilling and trilling prosecution: "Your Honor, and gentlemen of the Jury: You have all heard the convincing and clinching evidence advanced by my witnesses, all men of the highest standards. All the major events, all the minor details, clearly and concisely indicate the undisputable fact that the plaintiff was under the influence of liquor on the date named in the charge. We, all of us, are hesitant in our accusation of this man who has heretofore been such a valuable asset to the community. He has, with a very few exceptions, always performed his duties in a most masterly way preceding this recent escapade. He has fallen a great distance in our measure of his worthy responsibility and reliability. Drunkenness is inexcusable under any consideration! We cannot afford to retain a man in our midst who has proved himself so basely unworthy; and so I say to you that this man is guilty of the charge brought against him, and it is my intention that he be dealt with to the full extent of the law."

Mr. Lane then resumed his seat, and the eyes of the court were directed toward the defense.

The Judge then addressed the counsel for the defense: "Does the attorney for the plaintiff wish to question the witnesses of the prosecution?" The prompt reply of "no" settled the question, and everyone settled themselves to hear the plea of the defense.

Accordingly, with extreme gravity the counsel for the defense arose and began his plea: "Your Honor, the Judge, Gentlemen of the Jury: You have all heard the condemning evidence which has been advanced by the prosecution. They have been exceeding strong in their condemnation of the man who now sits before you. One might almost think that he had committed some foul deed more repulsive than murder. However, in the face of all this I shall attempt to show you wherein they were wrong. I shall call up Mr. Hess, my first, last and only witness, to testify for me."

Mr. Hess took the stand, and continued: "At a few minutes past eleven on the morning of the previously mentioned event, I observed Horace Tillman to leave Wharton Hall, and start for the station. He was attending strictly to his own business, and seemed to be in no particular hurry." Mr. Hess retired and left the stand once again to "Tony," who continued: "You have heard that the plaintiff left Wharton Hall at eleven o'clock. Ye know full well that Mr. Tillman would be unable to reach Darby before the hour of high noon. That in the dispatch of his duties would have returned at an earlier hour. Has nobody a good word for this man? He has always been the model of neatness and cleanliness in his work: he has been liked by everyone who has ever known him. Again and again have I heard the irate and 'kicking' occupants of this division offer up words in praise of this man. He has performed his duties in such a thorough manner that no other man has been able to equal him at the task. He is a gentleman whose integrity and honesty has never been for one fraction of a second doubted. It must be remembered also that this man is forced to work seven days in a week. Does a man never get a day off, is not this man entitled to one-half a day a week which he may call his own? Taking all these points into consideration I charge you, gentlemen of the jury, to weigh carefully in your minds this side of the case."

Then with great pomp and solemnity, the Big Chief Sheriff Krider first led the jury before the Judge, where they received a most imposing charge, and then to the jury-room to render a final decision in the case. "Do you want all the can, your Honor," cried Boughton, whereupon the court room relaxed itself, and a low murmur of conversation spread over the onlookers. The press men were pressing the Hot-Air of the trial into readable matter, while the Judge took another chew.

After a seemingly endless period of time, the jury reappeared, and Mr. Gilchrist, chairman of the said jury, stepped forward and proceeded: "The jury has arrived at the following decision: That Horace Tillman, plaintiff in this case, was intoxicated on the 20th of January, 1910. However, owing in a part to the volubility of his counsel, and in part to his own personal carriage, we demand that he be once again restored to his former position of porter of the South Division of old Joseph Wharton Hall. But should he ever again be reported in such condition on the campus of this college that he be finally and unconditionally fired!"

An awful silence fell when the plaintiff slowly came forward and placed his mighty paw upon the stately copy of Ganots Physics which lay upon the bar. Repeating word for word after the Judge, the trembling man took the following oath:

“I, Horace Tillman, in the presence of my Maker and this august assembly of the students of Swarthmore College, do hereby and hereon, most solemnly swear that if I am not reported to the authorities of this college on this occasion of misconduct, I will never again defile myself by using liquor of an intoxicating nature.

That I will attend to my duties in Wharton Hall to the best of my ability. So help me God and keep me steadfast!”

The trial over, the newsies swamped everything, and order was finally restored for a few minutes, while the representatives of the Associated Press took a flashlight of the court.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Horace has only been drunk twice since that time. Quite a remarkable record.

THROUGH THE TEETH OF THE BARKER.

“Have a look! Have a look! Come one and all; bring the children, and see the sights that were unheard of before the days of college circuses. It only costs 50 cents to see the only college-bred animals on the planet (by the way, that’s all they get to eat—bread, and college bread at that). Get your tickets at the box office—same price for all, from Prexy to Stites. Have a look! See it all, from start to finish.

If a fellow's "up against it,"
He is far from being there;
And because she is a co-ed
Is no sign that she is fair.

The most generous may get tight,
And the dull ones often cut;
Because you are a Senior
Is no sure sign you're a mutt.

We think we'd like to kill it,
But we hate it when it's dead;
And when some Prof. gives us a bust,
We often lose our head.

A greasy grind is hard to be,
Though a fellow's slick as grease;
And Sparro Pace is not a bird
Though connected with the geese.

The red-hot studes are never fired,
The dippy ones are straight;
Because a fusser's on the job,
He's nearly always late.

A man may be an easy mark,
Though it's hard to get him shot,
A Prof. gives you the icy stare,
When you have made him hot.

And when you hear a girl is soft,
It's a good sign she is tough;
Right here I chuck this rotten rhyme,
I know you've caught enough.

“Laundry Lou”

She is our goddess of cleanliness,
Who now glides through the door,
A paste-board box upheld aloft,
With collars piled galore;
One arm strewn o'er with starched waists,
Whose “full name” is no more,
But patient she keeps us clean and whole,
For she is our “Laundry Lou.”

She is our goddess of cleanliness;
And she knows us every one;
She knew our mothers, brothers, and aunts;
She may mend shirts for our son,
She knows our family history,
Long since Time was begun;
And she is proud to guard our wash,
For she is our “Laundry Lou.”

The Presentations of the Class of 1910

CLASS DAY, JUNE 6, 1910.

[Just as we were going to press the following document fell into our hands. It is the Senior presentation that will be given Class Day à la McDowell by George Corson.—Editor.]

Fellow Students, Members of the Class of 1910: Before beginning to-day's work I want to ask you in all seriousness to take everything in the McDowell spirit; nothing more is meant. So let us hie us to our work (as he would have said).

Rodger Gephart. Now Rodger, if thee will come forward like a perfect piece of millinery, I wish to present thee with the following degrees: an L.L.C., a B.S., a R.F., a M.A.D., and a P.D.Q. Thee has worked hard for these honors, but if thy dissipation had only been checked, we could have added K B Φ to the list.

Now I'll call on Marie Sellers, Elsie Fenton and Ethel Allertson. Our three prize members stand before you. For four years you vied with each other for all the honors. I thought that you henceforth in your separate vocations might be in need of some assistance in your work of rule and reform, and so we procured you, not Teddy's big stick, but the best substitutes we could find—three policemen's clubs right from headquarters. May they serve you as well as you have served us!

Robert Crews. Bob is well known to the Swarthmore world as an enterprising football manager. Many's the time last fall he inspired us to part with our cash with his exhortations to "come out and support the team, everybody." As a slight token of our esteem, we have had this ticket drawn up: "Please admit Mr. Robert Crews free to all football games held on Whittier Field." Thank you, Bob.

William Lancaster Jenkins, Gurdon Blodgett Jones, Joseph Franklin Gaskill, John White. These four gentlemen—pillars and props of the college, each one of them—have been accused of one great common fault, known in vulgar parlance as swelled-headedness. We have had this special order of hats made up which are peculiarly adapted to the above-mentioned failing in that they stretch with the growth in head. If you do not need them, they can be returned to Jacob Reed's Sons.

Florence Wallworth, Irvana Wood. Wally and Nan are our social queens. The number of dances they attend per season would make the stern old college fathers turn in their graves if they did but know it. This bunch of dance programs may help keep you supplied until the rush is over.

Butts Buck. No, Butts, that's not the "icy mitt" I'm giving you, but a pair of nice warm gloves for you and your little girl from town when you go skating—I thought you'd need only one pair.

Anna Griseom, Edna Jones. Rather than be the recipients of any gifts themselves, these girls have prepared a little treat for us. They have asked me to announce that their new book on "Neatness in Woman, or Why I am Finicky," is now ready for distribution at the Book Room. After the exercises these may be obtained free by all members of 1910, and for $1.08 by others.

Harold Millar, Guy Carr, Jimmy Stone. We've been told that you fellows were a little careless with your eyes, that sometimes they slipped and a flirtatious glance got loose. Wear these blinders and try to be careful when you get in a dangerous quarter. Oh, say, Jimmie, here's a basket of Bartlett pears for you. I almost forgot; excuse me.

Virginia Keeney, Martha Soyars, Mary Hallowell, Louise Corkran, Adelaide McGinnis and Fred Seamen: These six are all intimately concerned with one thing, namely, talking. Mary undoubtedly holds the speed record in that line. She can talk more to the square inch than any girl in college, so we have bought this parrot as the only match for her. For Virginia and Martha are these blank Victor records to "can" their voices; and here, Cork, is a noise dampener for you so your shrieks won't penetrate the air six tables away. Adelaide and Fred—the one lone man—were dragged into this fast company to try and inspire them to increase their noise-making propensities. These policemen's rattles may help.

Laurence Hess, Montgomery Marr. Honk, honk; heads up everybody. Here come a couple of reckless drivers straight for you. Before you whiz by take these Penn Mutual life insurance policies. You'll need 'em—toot, toot, so long.

Alma Daniels, Miriam Hines. These subjects illustrate a fundamental principle in college life—one that must appeal to every student. They are types of "mighty opposites," namely: Alma always has her work in on time, Miriam never. Alma retires at the proper hour of ten—Miriam burns the midnight oil until two or three, grinding out back comps. for Miss Lape. To Alma, the punctual one, we give this medal for good behavior; to Miriam, the sluggard, this dissertation on "Promptness" on the theme, "procrastination is the thief of time."

George Corson, Earl Wynn. Allow me to present the official class fools—these two youths gifted with the peculiar faculty of always being crazy. In order to give your profession more standing in college we have organized a "society for the further advancement of Fools' Interests at Swarthmore," with you as officers and charter members. The fool's cap has been selected as the regular society badge. Wear it upon all occasions, starting now.

Bertha Hepworth, Helen Maynard, Annie Pollitt, Riley Bressler, the class musicians. Bertha is the main stay of the Girls' Glee Club, while Helen and Annie manage the Sunday evening vespers, and incidentally often play for us themselves. Riley is the jack-of-all-trades in music. For Bertha we have secured these bound copies of Glee Club music for ten years back, and for Helen and Annie a couple of the latest hymnals, and for Riley this toy piano, so that he would always have an instrument handy.

Arthur Tanberg. In the famous Ruff trial recently, Arthur was the official court scribe. With lightning-like rapidity, he recorded the whole thing for 1911's splendid book. 1911 has asked me to extend to him their thanks.

Esther Barnes, Connie Wickham. Doesn't it look perfectly natural to see these two walking up here together, but wouldn't it seem more realistic if they had a banister and some steps to fuss with? We thought so, hence had this small pair made that the memory of those delicious evenings at Second West might not grow dim.

Priscilla Goodwyn, Frank Griffin. We just had to have Priscilla and Frank up together. However, we only want to give them our congratulations and best wishes and spare them any further embarrassment—you may go now.

John Johnson, Chris Bockius, Walter Krider. The platform is well filled, don't you think, when these three huskies step to the front? Yes, and they are generally "stepping to the front" in things athletic, too. They've brought fame and honor a-plenty to the college and 1910. Nothing seems more fitting for you than laurel wreaths (never mind if they are only made of cabbage leaves).

Samuel Bunting, Jesse Roberts. Victors of another kind are these men. Their prowess lies in mental feats. Given any two of the long-winded talkers you know, and Jesse and Sam will beat them out. These balloons will enable you to have a larger supply of hot-air always on tap.

Ed Fell, George Boughton, Norman Ogden. Incurable loafers! Gunpowder seemed the only really effective remedy. Applied sparingly this can may last until after commencement.

Beulah Green, Helen Lukens. Every day now for four years Beulah and Helen have beat it up to college through all sorts of weather. I thought they might need some replenishment in the way of footwear, hence these two pairs of Sorosis, waterproof shoes (size 9) for further use in hitting it up the asphaltum as ahnuui.

Fred Blatz, John Pitman, George Fussell, Winifred Renard, Pauline Fay. Shining lights, these, in their own special lines. Fred, as we all know, is a perfect wizard at chemistry. His gift to-day is an honorary degree in chemistry especially conferred by us—1910. We have after a big hunt found this book of "Unsolv-able Problems" for John. We're sure he'll have no trouble with them. George some day is going to startle the universe with his feats in surgery. As possible aids to him we have bought this hatchet and saw. Winifred is the Greek shark. Her sonorous voice wails out translations by the yard. This bust of Homer seems most fitting for her. Pauline can rattle off German at break-neck speed. Only this phonograph can beat her.

This completes our part of the program. I hope the hits have not been too hard or the jokes too punk. I thank you.

Hazel Brown, Grace Lee.—Hazel is notorious as a frenzied financier in the cracker business. Grace is well known as our careful Somerville banker. These dime banks may give you both a lift.

Sarah Kirk, Hattie Pentz, Jean Walker. Most any Saturday afternoon you can see the first two heading for Philadelphia to see the latest show. These tickets for Saturday's matinee were sent me, but I know you'll enjoy them more. Jean stays home and finds her own theatricals. She is a first-class manager as well as an actress—a make-up box for you, Jean.

Margaret Means, Blanche Gibson—two public speak-ers. If time permitted we would invite them to give you a few of their impersonations. You'd enjoy it. But as the afternoon is drawing to a close, I must stop with simply giving them each a subscription to the "Speaker" for a year.

Lawrence Beecher, Philip Sharples, James Lamb, Prentiss Myrick. A few of our heavy lovers—pretty hard hit all of them. Lawrence, will you accept this little book, "Alice, Sit-by-the-Fire," and Phil, this extra fire, for you know the roads are rough to Coatesville. Jimmie, this hundred-trip ticket book to Secane may be useful, and Prentiss, the heaviest of the heavies, this little string of two girls which you can add to all the time.

September 22d. We're off again. The co-eds take full possession of Parrish and then rush to Registration. On the lower campus is our football squad, and G. H. Brooke's familiar figure. It sure looks good after a year of quiet study. Under Delaplaine's leadership the Fresh destroy posters.

23d. Work starts. Doc. Hoadley having assigned a lesson as his classes registered. The girls will haze a little, so Miss Beadenkoff does a jig on a trunk, while Dolly Oliver renders a little song.

24th. The girls' pledge: "Well, it looks to me like a big night to-night." The Sophomores, ably assisted by Dutton, start on a series of senseless hazing.

25th. The Keg Rush comes off. The Freshman are victorious and carry with them the long-hidden keg. Pud Smith forgets himself and puts up a good fight, and now, as the crowd is leaving after viewing Doc. Fauver's forced ball game, the Freshmen hold the first meeting: honor where honor is due.

The Keg Rush

26th. The pale moon beholds a barbarious corruption of what used to be the old custom of fourth hall paddles held on the front campus. Parrish windows are alive with heads that are willing to look upon something that they termed "shocking."

Many Freshmen are hurt, and Doc. has his hands full; one throws a fit. Baker, Elliott and Van Trump hurt. It must be good-bye.

27th. The elder Jacobs distinguished herself by appropriating Tom Taylor's hat band and beating Krider in a fast heat down the hall.

28th. Sophs do some hazing on a select scale. Van Syckel leads the bucket brigade. Some thoughtless Freshman hollers fire, and Miss Lukens appears under an umbrella—(that is, her hair was down).

29th. The football team starts regular work on Whittier Field. It hardly looks like the old squad, but it is what we want.

30th. Doctor Goddard endeavors to hit the pace set by John Livingston; Pace coaches from the side lines.

October 1st. The Fresh females hold a little entertainment for the Sophomores. Very nice, enterprising party.

2d. The whole bunch of fellows journey to Chester to see a practice game with P. M. C.; leaving the girls to grace Prexie's reception. We get the cats for supper, anyway.

3d. Van Syckel, Baker, Williams and Goehring engage in a molasses feather fight in Wharton. Steve looks like a large-sized roaster.

4th. Stone makes his maiden speech in A. A. meeting. The result is lots of dues.

5th. By popular vote Van Syckel is awarded the palm as the freshest Freshman, and it was no walk-over to hold the belt either.

6th. A practice game with Medico-Chi. Eberle breaks his leg: the old question, Is the game worth the price?

8th. The girls hold their annual athletic tea.

9th. F. & M. get back at us for an old 67-0 score by nosing out a 5-0 victory in a poorly played game.

10th. Fair weather and the old-time fussers retire to Elwyn.

11th. That bunch of rather enterprising Freshmen form a leap-frog club on 4th hall.

12th. Elliott makes a bright answer in English—don't worry, he couldn't help it.

13th. For the small sum of a quarter the Junior girls feed hilariously in the gym.

14th. Johnny Pitman takes up the use of the vile weed to retain a stand-in with the Math. department.

15th. In Somerville Miss Plack gives a real take-off on the Bard of Swarthmore.

16th. Lafayette, 22; Swarthmore, 0. The team played a hard game against odds.

17th. A number attend Duckie's morning Bible class. That is—the few who could be bribed or needed credits in Bib. Lit.

18th. "The time has come," the Walrus said, "to speak of many things"—Meeting of heads of tables to discuss the grub.

19th. Miss Goodwyn forms the habit of meeting the 12.16 train. Griffin gives morning lectures at Drexel, you know. Nuff said.

20th. The "Varsity" hockey team loses to Lansdowne to the tune 7—5.

21st. Mr. Nearing holds forth in a flowery address on Woman's Rights. The arguments are a little inclined to evade the points. He claimed many converts, but—Riff told him a few, and the little Jacobs bravely held her own in a hot discussion afterwards.

22d. Senior feed. Consumers' League holds forth.

23d. Our football team loses to the "Mackerel snatchers" at Fordham, 21—3. Never mind—the Varsity hockey team beat the alumni, 4—1.

26th. The Freshmen girls feed in Simons' barn—a great success. Sophomores decidedly off the job. Miss Lounsbury affords a little amusement, and then follows a hot fight in front of the Pet.

27th. Dick coaxes a dog into the dining room in spite of the odors. Miss Ross remarks, "I always knew that red-headed people were kind to their friends."

28th. Miss Goodwyn in charge of library. She informs Frank he can't stay late unless he would take her home. He did.

29th. FOUNDER'S DAY. With the aid of a half-holiday we have the honor of starting a new custom. We celebrated by planting the granddaughters of the original Penn Treaty Elm with song, dance and some yelling. Everybody in line. 1911 was there with bells on; some one called us the "cussy" class, while we claim to be "classy." Haze sang a poem. Doc Hull made a speech presenting the trees, while Ike Clothier gave one of the same articles, accepting them. The question is, do the trees belong to the college or are they still in the family?

The Sophomores licked the Fresh, 11—0.

30th. We snow Delaware under to the tune of 46—0. Hallowe'en dance in the gym. "Culled" ladies, Mädchen, and all tribes represented. Elliott, Tarbel and Weller almost break their necks trying to see in.

November 1st. Miss Jacobs receives in the library.

2d. In a fit of jealousy H. G. Smith accuses Mr. Marriott of trying to work up a case on his girl.

3rd. $\Delta A \Sigma$ worms appear after the rain on the asphaltum.

4th. Ben Pollock has his lesson in algebra. Great excitement.

5th. Ye old-time Fresh-Soph reception. That never-to-be-forgotten time when the boys are hustled around by the over-zealous committee. Everyone had just time enough to say, "Aren't the decorations pretty?" and "I'm just crazy to dance, aren't you?" Same old style—nothing original and nothing to eat.

Villa Nova, 19; Swarthmore, 0. Nuff said. Hard game and hard luck.

7th. Everybody discusses the Villa Nova game, and Elsie Smock cuts meeting.

8th. First mid-semester exams. Freshmen seared stiff.

9th. Delegates for the Rochester convention elected. Crews, Miller and Corkran ran a good race, but lacked endurance (and other things).

Jay Sproul (Prof. Sproul that is) tries to state some scientific facts in regard to the new skin carbonate at Joseph Leidy.

10th. The Training Table Glee Club disturbs the dining room with their close harmony. Eberle eats at the Training Table.

11th. Josephine Foster tells the story of her life to Chas. Major, and now you can see the result. Major didn't tell his story.

12th. First regular meeting of Ananias Club.

Weller, president; Hall, vice-president; Miller, treasurer; Hattie Good, secretary (if you please).

13th. Entire college goes up to Collegeville. Ur-sinus, 34; Swarthmore, 6. We played a good game, and the support by the students was certainly great.

14th. Dead college. Boughton arrives 6 a.m. after walking in from Ridley Park.

15th. Prexy urges us to be prompt for grace, and every one gets down for grace at the next three meals.

Even Delaplaine gets in in time, and asks why it is so quiet all at once.

16th. Seniors beat Juniors in hockey, 3—2. Good game, and we were beaten fairly—how's that for spirit?

17th. Prex. thanks us for complying with his wishes, and asks for something else.

18th. Last football practice. Burned the dummy on Whittier field after a short practice at the country club. Everybody out and the Scrub given gracious thanks.

19th. Miss Bates gives Freshman party to a bunch of loud green ties and new gym suits.

20th. Greatest game of the season. Swarthmore, 29; Bucknell, 0. Ran rings around our heavier opponents. Big bunch of alumni back, and the great old-time spirit is once again seen.

Big celebration in dining room. Lots of cake, and Dr. Miller and Miss Bronk give good spiels. The team given a good send-off.

21st. Training busted in eight places, and game discussed generally.

22d. Junior girls draw (or else not) for Junior dance. Ruth Verlenden gets a blank.

23d. "Stung" Club organized, and seventeen carefully chosen boys asked to Junior dance.

Big Thanksgiving dinner at 6.15—NIT. The feed department is tight.

24th. Everyone leaves for vacation and something to eat.

29th. College supposed to start again, but things don't get going very well.

30th. Back to the grind.

December 1st. Young Devils appear fresh from H—. Great increase in demand for soup as Jake Vernon partakes of a walking lunch. Miss Baker and Jake enact the Bowl fight later in the meal.

2d. Dean raises thunder with the Devils. No more foolishness in the dining room—the seat of culture. Thanks for the culture, although not very satisfying.

3d. Rain.

4th. Junior dance at the Woman's Club. First 1911 dance, and things are done as usual—better than anyone else does them—Pitcher on committee.

Myrick and Virginia Keeney shine in "Andie" Pearson contest.

5th. Sunday.

6th. Young Monks appear, yellow as their fellow pigs. Monks afraid to wait the Devils, as is the custom. Be original and have 25 in your flock. You'll need 'em.

Scrappy meeting of the A. A. While votes are counted, Tony Weller renders a pathetic Yule-tide ballad.

7th. Griffin didn't get to sit by Priscilla. Great excitement.

8th. Ice cream as usual.

9th. Monks disappear, and the devils amuse themselves in an effort to find them. They were practicing that abominable song so they could sing to the girls.

10th. Seniors draw for their dance. Many of the yellow variety are among the chosen few. Boughton and Mary Hallowell both get sick and can't go.

11th. K K Γ gives a splendid tea at the Inn. Big time for all Sorority folk, young and old, pretty and otherwise.

12th. Baker and Gieg institute a Koo-Koo clock in front of the Pet.

13th. Tuberculosis exhibit comes to decorate the hall for a week. We discover that we are slowly dying.

14th. Monks sang, and did it well and long. Then they came out of Parrish, and were confronted by their mortal enemies, the Devils, who clashed in deadly combat with the above-mentioned monks, and were finally and mostly sat upon. Ratio, Monks: Devils: : 3 : 1.

The Monk-Devil Fight

15th. Force is treated to a little rail-riding party by his friends, the Sophomores, and ends up by breaking the thin skin of ice over the middle of the Crum.

16th. Devils have feed in Media, and return about the twelfth hour, and oh, that harmony in Collection Hall—why even Dean Bond joined in aloud with Appsey and the rest of the bunch. Then another war set in and the fight comes out even. Ratio, Monks : Devils : : 1.13 : 1.

17th. Eberle decides he has the "bugs," and follows this announcement with a solemn talk on temperance.

18th. Hamlet produced by Eng. VIII. Better than by Booth himself.

K \approx banquet.

19th. The portrait of Miss Bronk is discovered among the pictures of "con" exhibit, and causes much excitement and admiration.

20th. Big feed and big time. College comes wild with the annual Christmas party in the dining room. Even Miss Meeteer gets the Christmas fever. She fairly makes everybody go skating or walking at least. They must not stay around and annoy her, so they get out and have a good time.

Δ Y dance at Spring Haven.

21st. Nobody goes to classes, but all go home. Joe Foster and Charley Major say a remarkably well-controlled farewell in the dining room.

22d. College out, and only the editor and his assistant roam the dreary walks of life through Parrish.

January 5, 1910. The Christmas spirit lingers but a short time now, for the long, hard pull to spring vacation is ahead of us. The campus is beautiful in a deep covering of snow. Vernon Waddell announces her engagement.

6th. Doctor Goddard and Anna Griscom do vaudeville stunts on the library walk. Anna comes off with winning colors, while the Doctor is badly laid up.

7th. The delegates make their report on the Rochester convention. John White gets in form to speak in the pulpit down in that little village of Chadd's Ford.

8th. Φ Κ Ψ annual banquet.

9th. An unusually large crowd at hymn singing. Newt Tarbel tries to start the custom of clapping. Some heavy fussing around the west steps.

10th. The Monday afternoon games for the class championship in basketball start. The Sophomores trimmed the Freshmen, 26—7, while the Juniors handily defeated the Seniors, 24—10.

Big coasting party at Lansdowne.

11th. A hockey game with Penn. Buck's team was beaten by the score of 4—0.

12th. The sign, "Skating on Crum safe," is still in evidence.

13th. Skating still good. Lessons suffer at the expense of a good time. Smith's economic pond also suffers.

14th. Junior-Freshman reception—the social event of the year. Things went pretty fast for a while when the “fruit cake” was being sliced. How about Fatty Pancoast as a currant? The mystic titel was there with bells on, to the Dean's discomfort. Of course, we are far too modest to suggest that the Freshmen had a good time. We'll have to refer you to them.

Our championship basket ball team opened the season by losing to N. Y. U., 13—22.

15th. The basketball team lost again to St. John's College, this time by the score of 19—24.

16th. Doc. Hull spoke to a full house in meeting.

17th. The Sophomores beat the Seniors, 19—12. We nosed out an up-hill victory over the Freshmen, 14—13.

18th. With a record-breaking crowd we beat the redmen, 29—19. The old team played, and it looked like old form. Big smoker in K Σ rooms.

19th. Δ B Δ (Devilish Baker's Dozen) appear with new and stylish pins.

20th. One Miss Jordan gives us a talk on college settlement work, and incidentally the shirt-waist strikers.

THE TRIAL OF HORACE.

21st. Collection Hall turned into a “nickelodeum” singing and dancing galore by some of the gay Freshmen spirits.

Swarthmore, 38; Susquehanna, 14.

22d. Wild excitement—the new comet is discovered on the 4th west fire escape, and the girls rush to the spot in all sorts of attire.

In a fast game of four extra periods we beat the Army 27—26.

23d. The football team appear with their new sweaters. Jake Vernon wisely decides that he will leave college. Swarthmore's loss is Pomeroy's gain.

24th. The exams begin. A number injured in rush for back seats.

25th. Broth, crackers, cocoa and tea in order now.

26th. Hoopes and Carpenter seek the infirmary.

Reba Osler thinks she has the grip, but the nurse says not. Hard luck, Reba.

27th. More exams.

28th. Still more. Dutton leaves for Lehigh.

29th. We can breathe freely now.

Annapolis, 53; Swarthmore, 16. Not just like the Army game.

30th. Three adventurous female spirits visit Wharton. The fellows show lots of hospitality out of the windows.

31st. The second semester begins. K K F dance.

February 1st. Swarthmore, 29; Dickinson, 15. The Scrub beat Prep., 10—5.

2d. Miss Coles takes a few members of the Board through Wharton Hall, and Weller's room given first prize, while Fell and Gaskill's abode holds up the reputation of "quality row" by capturing second place. Dutton finds Lehigh not sporty enough for him.

3d. The Co-operative Female Sufferers' Association, headed by Miss Bates, takes possession of the Pet. This movement was caused by a fit of jealousy.

4th. Π Β Φ dance at the Woman's Club.

5th. Delta Beta Delta dance at Spring Haven. Chaperons retire and leave the young people to have a good time—they had it.

The relay team won at George Washington University.

Senator La Follette—bully.

7th. Junior night in Somerville. The girls gave a production of "Cranford" in honor of the Freshmen who had the distinction (marks) to be taken in.

8th. "Electricity on Shipboard," a talk by H. A. Houser.

9th. For the second time in history we beat Penn on their own floor, in a fast game. Up in the air! Why, they couldn't hit the back board. The score was 19—10. Nearly the whole college was there, a chaperon to every six girls. Those that stayed at home surprised the rooters with a big bonfire on the campus. Refreshments in the form of crackers in Collection Hall.

10th. Crumb Power brazenly holds hands with George Corson in the hall for five minutes. The passersby enjoyed it, but Crumb didn't—when she found out.

11th. Φ Σ Κ dance in the blizzard.

Sad news. Miss Ross is leaving. A man in the French department.

MISS ROSS LEAVES

THE ROSENBERG COMEDY

12th. Swarthmore, 29; Lehigh, 21.

13th. Marks are given out. Robinson and Duckie take delight in dealing out flunks. Meeting attendance is also reported. It seems that those who did attend during the semester must have said "never again."

14th. Drawings for Junior dance. Girls get valentines in the shape of partners. A smaller but more select Stung Club this time. Belle again demonstrates that she is a good sport. Not!

Freshmen, 29; Juniors, 4.

Sophomores, 23; Seniors, 10.

Miller tries to shoot a goal for the Fresh.

15th. An epidemic of grip and tonsillitis has seized the college. Business is brisk for Doc.

16th. We're jumping rope these days over the vacuum cleaner. Good for the health.

17th. Now that all the marks are settled the class of 1910½ organizes; those that can't graduate as a matter of course, and those that are afraid they won't, so as to have something to fall back on.

18th. The basketball team starts on its trip. Beecher too sick to go (that is, love sick). Annual oratorical contest for Delta Upsilon prize. Jones ropes the gold.

Swarthmore, 17; State, 20.

19th. Ed. Fell gives a stylish little theater party. Miss Bronk as chaperone.

Swarthmore, 25; Juniata, 15.

20th. A big line of girls await their turn in Somerville parlor to see the improper number of life.

21st. The Weaver sisters give a grand Washington's birthday party, all for ten cents.

Swarthmore, 25; Susquehanna, 22.

22d. By the grace of the board of managers we are allowed to loaf a day. Vic Lane gets up a dance to while away the time. Big scramble for girls.

Swarthmore, 13; Bucknell, 15.

23d. Wednesday night. No ice cream! Why? Because we did not eat those nice little hard dumplings that we had for dessert last night. Too bad about you, Miss Baker.

24th. Well, we got our ice cream to-night any way. Shows what a little kicking will do. Better late than never, children.

In a hard and fast game (the best of the home games) we beat State 30-27. The coon cop is much in evidence around the place. He seems to have a fever for butting in.

25th. P I K dance at Woman's Club.

26th. Too much social life causes a slump in the basketball team. Lehigh wins by the score 29—25. Shock booms the circus between halves. Tells us about the "ani-mules."

The Seniors and 1910½ attend in a body the dinner of the Swarthmore Club—as guests, of course.

27th. Tony Weller and Joe Webb spend the Sabbath decorating the country side with the circus posters, and make themselves objectionable to a certain pair of fussers. (We withhold their names by request.)

28th. The class games come to an end. The Juniors beat the Sophs, 11—9, and the Fresh smothered the Seniors, 30—10. The teams ranked, 1912, 1911, 1913, 1910. The poor Seniors did not win a game. Hard luck, after all the bragging you did about last year's championships.

March 1st. The Pigs take in enough new members to pay for their cut in the HALCYON. A good cause, all right.

2d. Spring has come, all right, for the campus is filled with a crowd of hopeful lacrosse and baseball candidates, and the girls have their heads out of the windows.

3d. Everybody on edge for the circus.

4th. Second annual circus. There was a crowd that filled the old gym to the roof. In spite of this slightly jammed condition and the highway robbery of the peanut girls, everybody was happy. The circus was as good as Max's, only in a different way. Nobody can forget the stars, Miller, Goehring, Wickham and Delaplaine, nor the "ani-mules" nor the grand march, nor the way Weller got back at Pace and Robinson for throwing him out of their respective courses. No, it was a long-to-be-remembered event.

5th. Pitcher gets Anna Belle Boyle on the 'phone, and discusses the beauties of a walk after dark. Horrors! (that's not what he said when he found out) it was a big mistake—he thought he was talking to Sport Fell. For particulars, see Anna Belle.

6th. Prexie discovers on this day that some of the choppy fiends are playing on the campus. It's awful to break the Sabbath on the lawn, so they retire to the seclusion of Whittier field, and Prexie is happy.

7th. The Pigs give a dance at Rose Valley, with a straw ride to start the hilarity.

8th. Senior dance. Only five dances this week. The faculty are getting a little excited.

9th. Tily and Philips make themselves noticed by sporting in turn an English cut-away coat and a loud vest.

10th. Women's Student Government rally. The old presidents come back to tell how they used to run things. Hot air is very abundant.

Extemp. Prelims.

11th. After a diplomatic suggestion from Prexie, Vic Lane leads collection in a cheer for the oratorical team.

Φ Κ Ψ dance at Spring Haven.

The oratorical team loses to Dickinson.

12th. D. U. dance at the Roosevelt.
Elite dance.

13th. Prentiss Myrick inflicts untold pain on Whar-ton by practicing his prize winning declamation which he will deliver before the Ethiopians of Morton.

14th. Prof. Pearson makes a speech in collection booming the college reception. That man knows how to speak. Jones wins the extemporaneous speaking contest. Emmor Roberts gets fourth place, but no money.

15th. We have soup for dinner, but the united order of soup spillers lose their nerve and fail to act.

In the evening the suffragettes hold a big meeting.

16th. Preliminaries of the girls extemp. contest. A big mass meeting to kick against the grub. Lots of indignation. Crews is there with the dope. Prexie crawls.

17th. St. Patrick's Day.

18th. College reception.

19th. Φ Σ Κ annual Banquet.

We go to press. The editors seek safety in flight and await results from behind fortifications.

UNDER THE SPREADING CHERRY TREE

“The time has come,” the walrus said,
To speak of many things,
Of carpet tacks and rolling pins,
Of cabbages and kings.”

TO A FEMALE MEMBER OF FACULTY.

Twinkle, twinkle, little star,
How I wonder if you are,
Up upon the platform seen,
49 or 17?

BACK TO COLLEGEVILLE.

Jimmy Mitchel—“Dr. Hull, may I be excused from history to-day to go to the Ursinus game?”

Dr. Hull—“Why, yes, I think it is good for students to get around and see other colleges; it broadens a man.”

DUMB LUCK.

Mary Hallówell (in French drama course actually enjoying herself with Rosie)—“Gosh, how this course has changed!”

EUREKA.

Natalie Turner (in English class)—“Why Teufels dröckh er—er— he disappeared—I guess no one knew—er—where he went.”

Belle Boyle (in a whisper)—“She’s clever; my, can’t she bluff!”

Dr. Goddard (with undesirable insight)—“Yes, Miss Boyle, Miss Turner is clever.”

EDITOR’S NOTE.—Natalie is discovered, and by the new Prof., too.

OLD STORY.

Innocent Freshie (arriving home after Xmas shopping in Wanamaker’s on December 17)—“Will some one tell me who that tall, light-haired talkative girl is who is now and then seen with that Griffin man? I met them going through Wanamaker’s to-day, arm in arm, and actually equipped with a carpet bag. They must have a case, to go shopping together.”

A Junior maid
Was much afraid
She’d miss the Junior Hop.
Now it’s all right,
For just to-night,
She got a check from Pop.

WHICH?

T. M. Ten maidens or Tooth Mugs?

A HEALTH.

Oh, here’s to Mister Marriott,
Our Math. Prof. true!
Yes, Mugsey, all our college
Is justly proud of you.

INNOCENCE?

Marion B. (in class): “I wonder if Joe got my note. She certainly must like to hold my hand, but it’s nice and soft, so I don’t mind. Oh, horrors! That must have been Blumbard’s pudgy palm, and I thought it was Joe.”

Exec. (on first trip to second transverse): What can that heavy purring noise be? It must be stopped, for it a positive blow to student government. (She puts a question to a regular transversite): “Oh, that’s all right; it was a nuisance at first, but we hear it every night you know. It’s only Miss Baker, and ‘The tuneful serenade of that wakeful nightingale—her nose.’”

NOTICE—THE CLASS OF 1910½.

Great Administrator—G. E. Boughton. Assistant Hanger-on, H. E. Millar. Biggest Talker, P. T. Sharpless. Ward Heeler—Edward Fell. Keeper of Sacred Records, H. L. Hess. Keeper of Coffers, Robert Crews.

Members.

All those who have been around college four years and who are afraid they can't graduate, and wish to make a joke of it; those who have not paid their class dues; and those sore on classes in general, and yet who wish to be something in particular; and finally those honestly en route for 1911. They boast a membership of fifteen.

We sing thy praise (and laugh), etc.

ANOTHER ONE FOR DUCKIE.

Interested Female Student: "Well, Bobbie, I see you have your report from school." She examines the report to find no passing grades. "But, what will father say to that?"

Young Duckie: "Papa'll raise hell."

WRONG AGAIN.

Doctor Hoadley: "Where is Eberle to-day?"

Doctor Wickham: "Sick. Laid up with a bad abscess."

Enter Tod smiling.

Doctor Hoadley (with that twinkle in his eye of which last year's HALCYON speaks so much)—"Wrong again, Wickham; you must have made a mistake in your diagnosis of the case."

COMING OUT OF HISTORY 104.

Vic Lane—"Who killed Cock Robin?"

Crews—"How should I know; I've been asleep the whole hour."

One of the many signs, notes and announcements that decorate the girls' bulletin boards up stairs:

Will the beastly bloke,
Who stole my soap,
Put it back to-morrow?
'Cause if she don't
I hope she'll choke
And have all kinds of sorrow.

Honest, people: it's a brand new cake in a white celluloid box—glycerine soap, and I want it.—Room 223.

A "RELIABLE BEAUTIFUL PRIMER OF ROSE CULTURE"

How to Grow Roses

Is a little book that has grown out of our years and years of experience in growing and selling Roses for America's millions. Roses for beds and bouquets, for arbors or terraces. For the North and the South or wherever you live and for whatever purpose. It has 36 pages. In beautifully colored covers and sumptuously illustrated — interesting, instructive and invaluable in showing you simply what you need to know and have and do to get an abundance of handsome bloom — also a list of 101 of the Best Roses in America, telling how to prune each one; with a calendar, too, telling when to do just what your Roses need.

The Editor of Garden Magazine writes — "I think your little book is brimful of instruction, and if you could only get the people to read it, it would surely do worlds of good."

Yours faithfully,

(Signed) L. BARRON.

Dean Emeritus of Swarthmore College, writes — "Next best to having the blooming roses right at hand, is this reliable, beautiful 'Primer of Rose-Culture.'"

Rev. F. Page Roberts, President of the National Rose Society of England — "After years of Rose growing in places far apart. I think it not so much the soil or the climate as the care and skill of the cultivator that wins success."

Halcyon Readers may have this Book with our compliments if they address Robert Pyle, '97, President of

Swarthmore Preparatory School

AN excellent institution, supervised by Friends, for mental, moral and physical development. Individual attention is given each pupil by a large and competent corps of instructors. The co-educational plan has proven a great success.

Pupils are thoroughly prepared for College, Technical School, or Business. Athletics are considered part of the course. The curriculum has met the approval of many leading educators.

The school is admirably situated, being only 30 minutes from Philadelphia. The school buildings and cottages are built of stone and are new and modern in every respect.

Athletics are encouraged, and there are ample facilities for indoor and outdoor sports. Up-to-date gymnasium, bowling alleys and swimming pool. Athletic field for baseball, running, etc.

The Path to Purity

Sharples Tubular Cream Separators not only extract all cream from milk, but also remove, from both milk and cream, that unwholesome sediment and viscous matter you so dislike to see remaining in your glass. A Tubular opens the path to purity in dairy products.

For One Cow or Many

The superiority of the 1909 Tubular "A" is too universally acknowledged to need comment. The low supply can, enclosed self-oiling gears, bottom-fed bowl suspended from single frictionless, ball-bearing, and the plumb bob attached to rear of frame for leveling machine indicate unrivalled excellence. Made in all sizes. Suitable for one cow or many.

LUCCA CREAM OLIVE OIL

Having, for the past forty years, been importing our olive oil, we have had opportunities, by correspondence as well as a personal visit, to ascertain the best source to obtain our supply, and for the above time have imported from the same producer, and it has always been satisfactory.

There are four grades of table oil imported; we import only the oil known as "CREAM," which is the highest grade.

Our Oil is "Guaranteed by Robert Shoemaker & Co., under the Food and Drugs Act, June 30th, 1906, No. 1006."

Imported by ROBERT SHOEMAKER & CO., Phila., Pa.

The "QR" Effect in Heating

Your building should have the best of heating systems—The Webster "QR" Modulation System.

Uses low pressure steam—circulates perfectly—heats the coldest room.

"QR" means "Quick Response." It is quicker to heat than hot water and quicker to cool. Any desired temperature maintained, from full steam warmth to mild hot water effect, by manipulating one valve on each radiator.

WE HAVE THE GOODS

Health More Valuable than Wealth

GOOD HEALTH is at the foundation of business success and personal happiness. Men, and women, too, for that matter, in this age of feverish business and social activity, are too apt to neglect the things that bring and preserve good health. It is almost needless to state that good digestion is the basis of good health, and that GOOD TEETH are essential to good digestion. THEREFORE KEEP YOUR TEETH.

NO MATTER what your tooth troubles are, I CAN CURE THEM. If you have receding gums, bleeding gums, exposed and aching teeth, if your teeth are loose, if you have pus formation at the roots of teeth, these are specific diseases, for which I have specific treatment. I have given lasting benefit to people suffering with these troubles.

CONSULT ME PERSONALLY, or write to me for directions on treatment. Free examination and advice. Hours, 8.30 to 6.30 p.m. Sundays, 10.00 to 2 p.m.
